MR. PATTERSON APPOINTED COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

The following are some of the comments on the appointment of Mr. A. C. Patterson to the office of Collector of Customs at North Portal, the new town at the boundary.

The Standard: "The Standard is very pleased to learn that Mr. A. C. Patterson, Editor of the Qu'Appelle Progress, has been appointed Collector of Customs at the international crossing of the Soo Road. Whether we have a protective tariff or one for revenue only, the public may depend that Mr. Patterson will make the matter of contributing to the public exchequer as agreeable to them as possible."

Vidette: Mr. A. C. Patterson, of Qu'Appelle Station, has received his appointment as Collector of Customs at North Portal, Assn., the new town on the "Soo" line, where it crosses the international boundary. Mr. Patterson's appointment is a good one, and will give general satisfaction. He is one of our early pioneers, having arrived here in 1882, and homesteaded north of old Troy post office. Later, he has followed the profession of a journalist and when appointed was editor and manager of the Progress, at Qu'Appelle Station. He has always taken a great interest in North-West politics, and was a loyal member of the Liberal-Conservative party, and in 1892 was made vice-president of the Central Conservative Association of Eastern Assiniboia.

Speculator: Mr. A. C. Patterson, editor of the Qu'Appelle Progress, has been appointed to the position of Collector of Customs at Stirling, the new town at the boundary on the Soo road. Mr. Patterson is a popular citizen and a good business man. In selecting him for this position the Government has put the right man in the right place. Mr. Patterson left for Estevan, which is only a few miles from Stirling, several days ago.

The Qu'Appelle correspondent to the Free Press: Mr. A. C. Patterson, editor of the Progress, has been appointed Collector of Customs at North Portal, Assiniboia. Mr. Patterson is one of our early settlers, settling here in 1882; has been closely identified with any public improvements; was the first clerk of the Municipality of South Qu'Appelle, and with some friends assisted in organizing the first Conservative association in the North-West Territories. He has been editor and manager of the Progress for the past three years and has made it a success.

The Estevan Correspondent to the Progress: The appointment of Mr. A. C. Patterson as Collector of Customs at North Portal is hailed with satisfaction here. The Government has made no mistake in their appointment. While we would have been better pleased had he been appointed to reside here, still the office will be convenient for residents here.

THE LATEST SWINDLE.

On Saturday night last, a man who has for some time been staying at the Hotel Atlantique, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and, of course, dressing like a gentleman, was arrested as a swindler. The man gave his name as W. C. Woodward, New York, and is said to be a sly looking individual. The game he has been carrying on with a good deal of success is a deep laid scheme, and hundreds of people have been duped. About the time of Woodward's arrival at Niagara Falls, an advertisement appeared in various papers throughout the States stating that a refined and cultivated young lady living happily with her guardian, a good house-keeper, fond of country life, and worth $30,000, wished to correspond with some honorable agriculturist or stock raiser, matrimonially inclined, etc. Large numbers of letters poured into the box where answers had to be sent, and seldom a day passed that there were not from 75 to 100 letters from gullible people, mostly farmers. The best of these Woodward replied to in a lady's hand, and succeeded in inducing the writers to send her money so that she could get away from her cruel guardian, and go to them and get married. One victim sent her $100 from New Jersey, and then, suspecting something wrong, went to Niagara Falls, and finally the whole business came to light. Woodward had an accomplice who was assisting him with his correspondence when the officers of the law introduced themselves.

THE G.O.M. AND THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Mr. Gladstone addressed the Midlothian Liberal Committee, in the Albert Hall, Edinburgh, on the 27th ult. His speech was looked forward to with great expectancy, and when he rose to speak was received with an outburst of enthusiastic cheers. He dealt with matters as particularly referring to Scotland, and then proceeded to review the relations that have existed between the House of Lords and the House of Commons since the passage of the Reform Bill in 1832. He said that since 1841 the legislation of the House of Commons had been a perpetual challenge to the House of Lords. Sometimes the latter had declined to accept the challenge and passed the measures proposed because unless they had done so there would now have been no House of Lords. As instances he cited the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846; the repeal of the soap duty in 1853; Irish disestablishment in 1869; and the passage of the Land Act in 1870. He also noticed three cases in which the House of Lords had taken a different course. The last of these was the refusal of the lords to pass the Home Rule Bill in 1886. The measure having been rejected by the Upper House, the question was discussed incessantly until 1892, when the entire country returned a majority in its favor. "That verdict," continued Mr. Gladstone, "the lords have now reversed. What are their plans for the reversal? A majority of the lords have given an opinion hostile to the bill; a majority of the commons an opinion in its favor; yet it is hardly a case in which one opinion is as good as another. The peers form their opinions for themselves. They are responsible to nobody, and if it proves wrong they will neither be abused nor be made to suffer in any way. Our opinion is not solely our own, but was formed in discussion with the nation, and was given with all the authority that a national verdict can confer. I think, therefore, that the peers do not stand well on their own showing. They certainly stand worse on the showing of their friends in the House of Commons. The latter set up the fantastic plea that the people know nothing of the bill. Necessarily it involves a multitude of important details, but with the single exception of the question of the retention in Parliament of the Irish members, in which we, to the utmost, conform to the will of the people, the country displayed no disposition to enter into details, but was content to leave it to the discussion of Parliament. There could not possibly be a more frivolous pretence than that the people do not know the bill." After placing himself in the position of the House of Lords, and speaking from that standpoint, Mr. Gladstone went on to speak for the House of Commons. "I should say we admit that the majority may misinterpret the voice and judgment of the country, though if we do misinterpret them we ought to be called to account by those entitled to do so, namely, the people of the country. But we make this plea; we say, if we are punished, why should not the majority in the House of Lords also be punished when it misinterprets the judgment of the country? Let us have fair play and no favor. Why should the House of Lords be allowed to pass off with impunity—an impunity which only encourages them to repeat upon the first occasion a similar prank to that they have just committed? Depend upon it, it is an extremely serious matter. We have arrived at a very serious position, and the grand question is how are we to escape from it?" In regard to the manner of fighting the situation, Mr. Gladstone said that there could not be procured a cut and dried solution of the dilemma. He counselled neither violence nor vehemence. All that was necessary was a quiet determination to cling to the hope that better counsels would prevail and induce the House of Lords to —The dates for a programme of addresses on the tariff question will be delivered throughout the country by the Ministers of Finance and Agriculture, the Hon. Messrs. Foster and Angers, have been fixed. The ministers will visit Qu'Appelle on Saturday, October 21st, arriving from Moosomin, and will leave again on Sunday for Regina.

—At a meeting of the Municipal Council on Monday last, a by-law was passed with reference to the herd law. The present herd law ceases to be in force in the day time on the 20th of the present month but will have to be observed from seven o'clock in the evening to seven in the morning till the 20th of November.

—When the Northern Pacific train left Winnipeg Junction Saturday night, there was on board a newly married couple in the sleeping car whose coolings attracted attention. Finally the lady said: "I am going to get a drink of water. When I come back stick your foot out of the berth so I won't make a mistake." When she turned to come back every foot in the car was exposed. There are some things mean men do in this country.—Grafton News Times.

—The Broadview Money Order Office will shortly be in operation again under the efficient management of Mr. J. Clementson, a well known and popular merchant and post-master, who has received an official intimation to that effect. It may be remembered that a few weeks ago Mr. Clementson was heartily endorsed by a public meeting for the position, and the appointment gives full satisfaction to the town and district.

In the case of Queen v. Plant, defendant Plant failed to appear, and the case was allowed to stand over subject to call.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON QUESTIONED BY W.C.T.U.

Sir John Thompson is evidently being freely questioned by those with whom he comes in contact whilst engaged addressing public gatherings.

At Southampton, Ont., on the 28th ult., a deputation of ladies from the W.C.T.U. submitted several questions. One was "Why may we expect the Royal Commission to have completed its work?"

that we may learn the result?" The Premier made the reply, "We fully expect the report will be ready at the close of the year at the latest." We are determined, if it be possible to do it, and we believe it will be possible, to have it ready to lay upon the table of Parliament at an early period next session." The next question was "If the report is favorable may we expect the Government to take immediate steps for the extermination of this injurious traffic?" In answer Sir John said: "I have assured you in my answer to that question which asks whether we are making enquiry by prohibition commission in good faith, that we are making it in good faith. That we intend that it shall be as we design it to be. The report is for the information of the whole people. It is a report upon which action is intended to be taken. I say to you freely, if the commission should find and report in favor of prohibition, and the evidence produced by the commission justified the report in the opinion of Parliament, it will be the duty of any Government to bring in a bill in that direction as soon as possible. The next question, as to women franchise, he said: "We think there is a possibility of the franchise being extended to women on the same qualifications as it is to the men."

WOLVES AND GOPHERS.

The legislators of the North West Territories have recently been grappling with the wolf question. Mr. Cayley, one of the members for Calgary, introduced a bill to provide a government bounty for each animal killed. His proposal was not entertained. The wolves are a terror to the ranchers of Southern Alberta, and it was at their instance mainly that Mr. Cayley introduced his measure. But the easterners could not see their way to consent to a wolf bounty unless it was balanced by a similar measure for the extirpation of gophers, which they allege are as injurious to the interests of grain growers as wolves are to the stock men. This objection had the support of the Executive Committee for financial reasons. There is only a fixed and limited amount of money in the public purse and payments made to kill obnoxious quadrupeds means necessarily so much less available for public purposes. The suggestion of Mr. Haultain was that each district out of its own local appropriation should set apart some portion to be used for the encouragement of wolf or gopher hunters, as the case might be. This means that if so much money is spent on bounties for wolves and gopher heads, there will be just so much less left for roads and bridges. Mr. Haultain's home-rule suggestion seems at first sight reasonable. But it is quite like a few years test would demonstrate the utter insufficiency of this mode of dealing with the difficulty. There is no local machinery by which such a plan could be worked, and wolves would have multiplied so much that ranchers would find it impossible with advantage to continue the operations, and the grazing range would cease. Wolves multiply fast while legislators are adjusting or trying to adjust contending sectional interests, and their increase means peril to one of the most valuable industries in the Territories. Whatever is to be done against gophers, it will be found before long that the neglect of vigorous measures for the extirpation of wolves was a mistaken policy on one of the worst kinds of economy. The matter has for the present been shelved, but it is to be hoped that in the very next session of the North West Assembly a sum may be put in the estimates for wolf bounties and the necessary legislation carried through for a vigorous campaign against their ravages.

HON. MR. IVES IS PLEASED WITH THE N.W.M.P.

Hon. Mr. Ives, the President of the Council, has returned from his tour, and left Winnipeg on Saturday for Chicago.

To a Free Press reporter Mr. Ives said he was proud of the force, the N.W.M.P., with which he was contented.

"The discipline," he said, "is first rate. They are a fine body of men mounted as well, I believe, as any force in the world. The saddles, accoutrements, etc., are kept in the best condition, as indeed are the barracks generally."

"Then you would say the condition of the force reflects credit upon Commissioner Herchmer?"

"Most decidedly I would. Among other recommendations Col. Herchmer is a close buyer. It is a shrewd customer that gets round him, and with the large amount of supplies, forage, etc., that have to be purchased this is a very important thing."

"Well, what about Davin's complaint, the investigation field commission and Judge Whetmore's report?"

"All I have to say on that subject is that I shall make a report in reference to Judge Whetmore's investigation, which will be before Parliament next session."

"Is it not the intention of the Government to construct more permanent barracks?"

"I am strongly in favor of better barracks being erected of brick, stone and more lasting material, and I think I may say the Government will do this work and that it will be a distinct economy in the end."

"At what points will these barracks be built?"

"That I am not at liberty to say, but I have formed my opinion where they should be built."
